Away from the security of your school, a child being separated from their group is a very real risk and happens in just seconds. Teachers understand and dread the many opportunities for separation, even if they have parent assistance. Children lag behind, run to the rest room, get mixed with other groups, and board the wrong bus, among many other reasons.

The current practice of using name badges is dangerous and outdated and the addition of matching T-shirts offer limited protection

- Badges broadcast the child's name and school location to the public
- Badges display teacher's name and personal information
- Badges listing the school's phone number greatly delay contact and return, adding stress to a frightening situation
- Teachers do not like displaying or provide their cell numbers as parents, students, and the public will contact them for other purposes
- T-shirts are only effective when group is within visual distance

Field Trip Safeguard® is an automated system to contact multiple teachers on a field trip to enable rapid return of a child directly to their teacher. The reused lanyards protect children's identities and increase your teachers' safety by keeping their names and phone numbers confidential. This solution dramatically improves your safety and risk management procedures, and increases parent confidence and teacher morale.

Protect your school starting at just $185 annually (pennies per child)
